What should I do if I have a problem in one of my dual enrollment courses?

Just like your regular high school classes, the first person you should consult with a problem in your dual enrollment class is your teacher.

Respectful communication, either before or after class, or at the end of the school day, is a good strategy to follow. Alternatively, email that is correctly addressed to your teacher (Dear Mr./ Ms. _____:) should include your whole name, the course number and name that you are enrolled in, and a brief description of your issue.

If you believe that your issue or problem is still not resolved with communication with the teacher, please follow your institution's procedure for the next level of notification. This may be a department chair, assistant/associate principal, or the principal.

Hopefully your issue or problem can be resolved within your own high school. However, be aware that there are more sophisticated policies at FIU for these matters. As an enrolled FIU student, you do have access to these established avenues:

Ms. Sherilyn Lukas, Coordinator at the University College can be a resource. Her email address is: Sherilyn.Lukas@fiu.edu
