The Council of Great City Schools (CGCS) was founded in 1956 and supports the mission of America's urban public schools to "educate the nation's most diverse student body to the highest academic standards and prepare them to contribute to our democracy and the global community." The CGCS advocates for the needs of urban school districts and inner city students through legislation, research, and by building capacity in urban education leaders dedicated to narrowing the achievement gap, improving academic performance and strengthening leadership, governance and finance.

This year, The CGCS held their 60th Annual Fall Conference in Miami from October 19-23. The conference provided urban school district participants an opportunity to learn about reform work, model programs, and best practices throughout the country.

Over 1,000 members consisting of urban school superintendents, School Board Members, Deans of Colleges of Education and Senior School District Administrators representing over 7.3 Million students in 70 urban school districts engaged in this year's fall conference. With a robust agenda featuring relevant topics and breakout sessions on urban school achievement, professional development, and bilingual education, as well as nationally acclaimed speakers, this year's annual conference was a well-received success.

Miami-Dade County Public Schools (M-DCPS) is to be commended for facilitating this year's conference, fittingly themed 'Reinvigorating, Reimagining, Reinventing' and casting a spotlight on the vision and work of the nation's fourth largest school district. M-DCPS had the opportunity to showcase the initiatives, academic offerings, diverse magnet programming, and remarkable student talent that makes our school district worthy of the 'Miami Miracle' moniker. Participants were afforded the opportunity to visit the acclaimed iPreparatory Academy and delight in musical and dramatic performances by acclaimed school groups and student artists.

Planning for this year's conference was led by Lisa Martinez, Chief Strategy Officer, under the leadership and direction of the Superintendent. Ms. Martinez and her team oversaw critical planning and logistical elements that ensured seamless transitions, optimal preparation, and a flawless execution of the agenda. Also critical to the success of the conference, was the participation and expertise of several M-DCPS departments aptly represented by Jose Dotres, Chief Human Capital Management, Jaime Torrens, Chief Facilities Officer, David K. Moore, Assistant Superintendent Division of Academic Support, Ron Steiger, Chief Budget Officer, Lisa Thurber, District Director Office of Community Engagement, Cindy Caldwell, Executive Director, New Teacher Support, Wandarece Ruan, Administrative Director, Office of Professional Development and Evaluation, Renny L. Neyra, District Director, Michele Mordica, Community Liaison Specialist, Luis Diaz, Administrative Director. Additionally, Superintendent Alberto M.
