LINK TO STRATEGIC PLAN: INFORMED, ENGAGED, & EMPOWERED STAKEHOLDERS

Carlos A. Migoya has devoted decades of distinguished service to public leadership, finance, and healthcare. For nearly 15 years, he has served as the CEO of Jackson Health System, Miami-Dade County's only public academic health system. When he stepped into leadership in 2011, he inherited an organization plagued by financial instability and waning public trust. Through disciplined stewardship, transparency, and accountability, he reversed years of losses, achieving sustained surpluses and restoring the reputation of one of the nation's largest public hospital systems.

Under Mr. Migoya's leadership, Jackson Health System evolved into a robust network of hospitals and community services. This expansion solidified the system's mission to provide world-class healthcare to every Miami-Dade resident, regardless of income, insurance status, or background. By consistently championing healthcare as a fundamental human right, he has advanced initiatives that address social determinants of health, bolster workforce stability, and foster community partnerships—ultimately improving patient outcomes across South Florida.

Beyond operational success, Mr. Migoya has cultivated a resilient and ethical workforce of over 15,000. By fostering a culture of compassion and accountability, he ensured Jackson Health System maintained excellence during the COVID-19 pandemic and remained a trusted anchor of healthcare for the community. His leadership reflects a balance of strategic vision and human-centered care, emphasizing both institutional strength and individual impact.

Mr. Migoya's lifelong commitment to public service is deeply personal, shaped by his family's experiences as patients at Jackson Memorial Hospital. His dedication is rooted in preserving an institution that provides lifesaving care to generations of Miami-Dade residents. Through his leadership and civic engagement, Carlos A. Migoya has earned widespread respect, leaving a legacy of profound contributions to healthcare, public trust, and the quality of life in Miami-Dade County and beyond.

The School Board of Miami-Dade County, Florida, honors Carlos A. Migoya for his dedication to equitable healthcare and public service. We recognize his leadership in expanding access to care and improving health outcomes for students and families, and we commend the professionals and partners who, under his guidance, help our community thrive with dignity and health.
